

Teaching and raising children these days can be challenging and at times exhausting! Educators and parents are burdened by health threats and COVID restrictions, testing requirements, and social media distractions, to name a few.

There are a few common truths about quality educators:

- They do not get into education to make lots of money.
- Passion drives their commitment to unlocking the greatness and potential that lies within each child.
- Clear support of their passionately held purpose refuels their ability to often achieve results above and beyond what many believe possible! They, and their students, overcome obstacles and soar.

With this in mind, we hope educators will enjoy and draw inspiration from a short film, Teddy, and its accompanying support package.

Our goal is to assist educators and families in nurturing and uplifting children.

We, at the 10 Greatest Gifts Project, believe our approach of using a set of tools—focus, message, teach, listen and model—will assist educators and parents in fostering honest, self-reliant, responsible, and confident children. When these five tools are utilized intentionally and fully, children thrive, both now and in the future. This approach comes from Simon & Schuster's best-selling, family-building book, The 10 Greatest Gifts I Give My Children by Steven Vannoy.

A Bit About Who We Are and What We Believe

Going Upstream: The 10 Greatest Gifts Project

The 10 Greatest Gifts process was launched over 30 years ago and is now utilized internationally. We are a nonprofit that has created the most upstream family programs in the world. Upstream simply means building honest, self-reliant, responsible, and confident children in the first place versus trying to fix problems downstream.

"When you see the goodness in somebody ...
it changes everything!"
